Executive Base Network Expands Virtual Office Options for Tri-Valley Professionals

September 15, 2026

San Ramon, California - September 15, 2026 -
Executive Base Network, a women-owned executive suite and virtual office provider serving San Ramon and the surrounding Tri-Valley since 1984, has detailed how its virtual office solutions now scale into physical workspace on demand for businesses across San Ramon, Danville, Dublin, Pleasanton, and Walnut Creek.

The development responds to the continued growth of hybrid and remote work throughout the Bay Area, where solopreneurs, remote workers, and small businesses increasingly seek a professional address without the cost of a permanent office. Executive Base Network virtual office packages combine a professional Tri-Valley business address, live receptionist service, comprehensive mail handling, and access to on-demand office and meeting facilities.

Under the model, virtual office clients can reserve physical space as their needs change. Private offices are available by the hour at 20 dollars, day offices at 100 dollars per day, and conference rooms at 35 dollars per hour. Each meeting room includes a 65-inch monitor and high-speed internet connectivity, allowing professionals to host clients, conduct interviews, or run workshops in a professional setting.

Every arrangement is offered on a month-to-month basis. This structure contrasts with the six to twelve month commitments common at national chains, giving Tri-Valley professionals the ability to adjust their workspace as their circumstances evolve. Virtual office packages begin at 45 dollars per month.

The company operates from a building located just off Interstate 680 at Crow Canyon Road, with free parking available on site. The location places clients within reach of the wider Tri-Valley market while offering the practical amenities that hybrid businesses require when they need a place to meet in person.

Executive Base Network distinguishes its approach through local ownership, direct access to management, transparent pricing, and the absence of long-term contract requirements. In addition to virtual office packages, the company provides full-time office packages, meeting room rentals, and private offices on demand, forming a range of workspace solutions that adapt to independent professionals and growing teams alike.

The flexibility of the model reflects a broader shift in how businesses in the region think about workspace. Rather than committing to fixed overhead, many organizations now maintain a professional presence while calling on physical space only when it is needed.

"Hybrid and remote businesses across the Tri-Valley want a professional base without the burden of fixed overhead," said Tara Teodoro, President and CEO of Executive Base Network. "Our virtual office packages give a company a real local address and receptionist, and when a client needs a private office or a conference room, it is there by the hour. That combination lets a business look established and stay flexible at the same time."
